- Key Business Insights
- Sales were highest in December, showing strong year-end customer demand and increased purchasing activity during the holiday season.
- The West region generated the highest sales overall, but profit growth was comparatively lower, which may indicate higher discounts or operational costs in that region.
- Technology was the top-performing category in terms of overall sales and contributed a major share of total revenue.
- A few products, including High-Speed Office Copier and Desktop Color Copier, contributed heavily to total sales, showing strong dependency on top-performing products.
- The Consumer segment generated the highest overall revenue, making it the biggest contributor to total sales performance.
- The Online channel recorded the highest sales volume, while the Store channel maintained comparatively better profit margins and profitability efficiency.
- Only 6% of total orders were returned, indicating stable sales performance and relatively good customer satisfaction levels.
